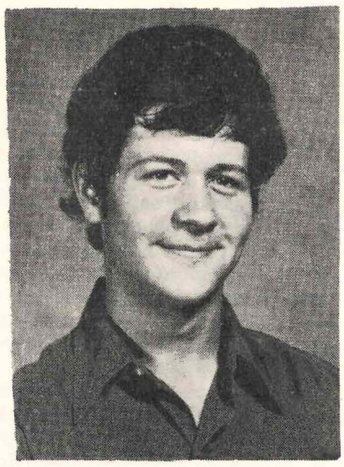
TRAGEDY STRIKES



Robert R. Wilkerson, Jr.

Robert R. Wilkerson, Jr., 17, of Route 2, Wolcott, passed away November 18 in the Jasper County Hospital due to injuries suffered in an accident on October 26.

Born in Lafayette on April 9, 1956 he was a son of Robert Raymond Sr., and Mary (Agnew) Wilkerson. Robert Wilkerson was married to Suzanne Miller on October 6, in Remington.

A lifetime resident of Jasper County, he was a student at Rensselaer Central High School and attended Milroy Community Church. He had been employed at Schumacher Electric Corporation for six months.

Surviving with the parents are one sister, Miss Debra S. Wilkerson of Monon, two brothers, James E. and Richard B., both of Monon, the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Bell of Yeoman, Indiana, and the maternal grandmother Mrs. Hulda Agnew of Rensselaer.

Robert Wilkerson, was injured on his way to work in an accident on October 26, when he hit a tractor pulling two wagons of corn. Forty-five minutes later he was extracted by the Rensselaer Volunteer Fire Department. He was then taken to Jasper County Hospital where he remained in a coma until death.

Rensselaer Rescue Squad

Throughout the country, more and more fire departments are starting rescue squads, to combat death.

When interstate 65 was put in the Rensselaer area, there was speculation on the number of serious accidents that would take place in this area. There have been a few bad ones but not as many as was thought.

About two years ago, the Rensselaer Fire Department started thinking seriously about starting a rescue squad. Little by little they bought or made enough equipment to start training.

Last June several members of the fire department went to an Indiana State Board of Health School on extracting people from cars and trucks. The school lasted two days.

Since then the fire department has gone to a class in Lafayette and put on their own training. Now two thirds of the department has training for rescue.

The object of the squad is to save lives. They have saved a few people. The trick to getting a person out of a wrecked car is not just pulling them out, but get them out without hurting them more than they are.

The fire department tends to get a rescue vehicle just for rescues, but they must get a new firehouse first. They carry their equipment in the Township pumper at the present time.

Livestock Exposition

Since 1899, the Chicago stock yards, the largest stock yards in the world, has been the setting for the International Livestock Exposition.

For 74 years the Amphitheater has been the stage for the famous show, rodeo, and attractions.

This year promises to be an exceptionally extravagant year for the Exposition. Estimates have shown that more livestock than ever will be present.

The show hosts both 4-H and Open Class Shows in beef, sheep, and swine, fat and breeding classes.

The 4-H classes are open to any 4-H member in the United States and the Open Classes are open to the entire world.

The International was nearing extinction a few years ago when the entire stock yards was removed after several years of "declining health."

Now it is back in full swing and is self-supporting with the people's help.

Field Trips Cancelled

Supt. Robert Ayres has stated that the school board will no longer provide buses for field trips, and buses for sports-related trips must be financed by the individual sports department.

The school board states that the trouble is the fuel shortage but is it a money shortage grounding the buses? In a recent telephone conversation with Supt. Robert Ayres, he informed the paper that buses will be provided but money for fuel must come from the sports and other departments.

He also said that it has always been the policy for the people using the buses to pay for the fuel. But this policy has not been enforced until now.

The buses were given to the team with gas in them, and they were returned with what was left.

In a recent letter to the Rensselaer Republican "Interested parents and patrons" stated that they felt this action seemed "Hasty" and a "snap judgment" they also said that " if you listened to President Nixon a few nights ago you, heard him say that gas rationing was to be used only as a last resort. We believe at least until the time the gas rationing is in effect that the school board should reconsider their stand on the school furnishing transportation for extra curricular activities."

To Be Or Not To Be

Mr. Ryan talked to the Senior lecture halls on the subject of the Senior play. Because of a time problem Mr. Ryan proposed a joint Junior-Senior play to be put on sometime after Christmas. This idea was voted down.

Other ideas included: a Christmas convocation which would take the whole afternoon put on entirely by seniors, a play about Christmas, a play to be started now and put on after Christmas, a variety show to which seniors could charge admission to help get the senior class out of debt and a senior day in which all seniors would display their arts and crafts, etc.

According to Mr. Ryan if a play was decided on, Mr. Stith, who was in the Purdue Glee Club, and Mr. Marquis, who heads the high school stage band, would like to assist in putting on some sort of musical.

Mr. Ryan then passed around pieces of paper for students to indicate their interest in one of the ideas.

More information on the senior play will be given out as it becomes available.

Too Poor To Buy Gas

What is wrong with the school administration? Recently over the announcements we learned that the price of riding on the fan buses was going up to help pay for gas.

The school seemingly does not have the money to buy gas. Doesn't it seem strange that since the school buys most of their gas at a discount anyway that they wouldn't save enough to buy gas for the player and fan buses?

Also, isn't it illogical that the school has money to pay for the heating of the building where the game will be played and the school has money to pay for the lighting where the game will be played, but they have no money to buy gas so our team will be able to play.

What is the use of having a building heated and lighted when there will be no team to play in it?

It's obvious there is something wrong with this setup. If there is money for other things why is there no money to buy gas?

Letter To The Editor

I would like to congratulate you on a fine feature about this area just covering Chicago sports. I think the whole article comes out with the truth.

The radio, newspaper, and television should cover all Pro-teams. If there just going to cover Chicago teams, then they're better off if they don't even cover any sports activities at all. You could have also stated that if you take any newspaper, other than the Chicago or any paper around the Rensselaer area, you would probably find out that they generally cover all pro-sports activities fairly well.

But at your editorial clearly stated this area covers mainly Bears, Blackhawks, Bulls, Cubs, Cougars, and White Sox. I happen to be a Pittsburgh fan. When do you hear about the Pittsburgh Pirates baseball team during the baseball season, only when they're in the playoffs or world series.

But you in your editorial didn't state why you hear only about the Pirates, plus the other three teams in the playoffs instead of the Cubs and White Sox. The reason is the Cubs and White Sox never make the playoffs, so therefore the media is actually forced to report or print on the four teams.

This goes for the same way in all-pro-sports. Once again congratulations on a fine article.

Letter to the Editor

Since I am infuriated by the new study hall system, I thought that a word in THE RENSSELAERIEN might do some good.

In my study hall (12th and 13th modes) Mr. Dorman told us that if the supervisor of our study hall thought our conduct was good, we could go to commons. However, the fact that I had a certain study hall teacher killed many of the students' chances. My problem was that whenever the teacher yelled at me, I yelled back.

In one of my other study halls I was released because of grades, but not in this one. It seems to me that if study halls are for studying, and students that get good grades don't need the extra study time, then grades should be a major factor in determining who should be released from the study halls. I can see how conduct can come into effect, but with a teacher like I have in one study hall, (who is obviously prejudiced against certain students), this new system cannot be fair.

Broadcasting Bias

Fantastic play, tremendous play, what a play, great stop, "That's what you hear on television when the Chicago Cubs play baseball. Why can't the announcer give the same amount of credit to both teams?

By now your all wondering what Chicago Cub broadcaster is meant. His name is Jack Brickhouse, known in our family as "Straw Shack."

OK, Jack Brickhouse is a good announcer. He does keep everybody informed, such as the batting, runs batted in, home run, and pitching leaders. But regarding his not giving credit to the opposing team, I can remember one particular day when the Cubs played the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Milt May hit a baseball to their so-called all-star third baseman, Ron Santo. Santo went to his right and threw May out at first. Mr. "Straw Shack" thought that, that this was a fantastic play.

A few innings later Ex-Cub Glen Beckert was up to Rich Hebner, the Pirates third baseman. He also went to his right and the ball seemed to be in the same place as the ball that was hit to Santo. Rich Hebner threw Beckert out at first base.

But do you think for one moment that Brickhouse would give credit. to Hebner for a fine play? Heck No! This is just one example of the many times when Brickhouse does not give credit to the opposing team.

To even push this farther, if someone makes a "Shoestring Catch" on the opposing team, it's just an ordinary play, but if one of the Cubs makes a "Shoestring Catch" you'll always hear either "Fantastic Play, what-a-play, or tremendous play." For other than Cub fans this is too much. Maybe one game of giving credit to the opposing team is o.k., but having to listen to almost a hundred and sixty-two ball games of this is too much.

Another thing is when the opposing team always hits a home run. It was when the wind was blowing out toward right, center and left field walls. But when a Cub is up, and hits the ball to the wall, the outfielder catches the ball on the "Warning Track," it always happens when the wind is blowing in. Come on now you've got to be kidding. The wind doesn't always blow out when the opposing team is up and in when the Cubs are batting!

An example of this is: I had the so-called pleasure of seeing what Cub fans claim as beautiful Wrigley Field. To see the Cubs play Montreal in a double header.

That night while watching the replays of the ball games on channel nine, they showed one replay in which it showed a Cub hitting a ball that was caught on the warning track. Brickhouse said that the wind held the ball in. As I remember correctly there was almost no wind at all that day.

For Cub fans who want to hear the correct way of broadcasting by giving credit to both teams, listen to such announcers as: Al Michaels, Harry Carey of the White Sox and so on. J S

Book Review

Science fiction is really becoming popular. Speaking of science fiction, Arthur C. Clarke has just come out with a new book, Rendezvous with Rama.

Rama is a large celestial body, which is at first believed to be a wandering asteroid, that enters the solar system in 2130.

Rama locks on to a looping elliptical orbit that will take it around the sun and then back out into deep space. However, it soon becomes obvious that the object isn't natural: It is a perfect cylinder, 31 miles long, spinning at a high rate of speed and apparently hollow.

An expedition is sent out from earth to investigate the cylinder and story begins to look like the classic old human meets alien plot. But Clarke is one of the best science fiction writers and you'll have to read the book to find out the interesting twist this story has.

Among Clarke's other works are Childhood's End, Tales From the White Hart and the story line from 2001.

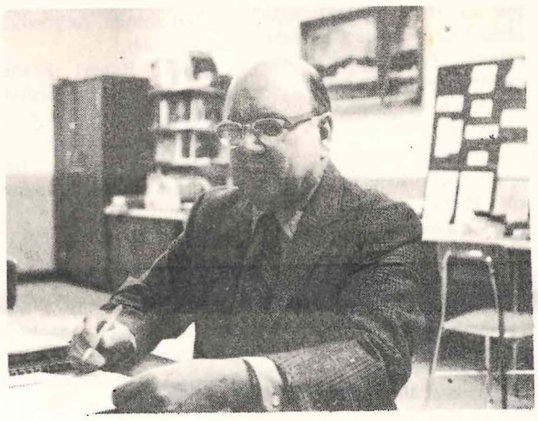
Other science fiction books to watch for are Sirius and Starmaker, both by Olaf Stapledon.

Sirius deals with a dog with the brain capacity of a human while Starmaker is about an out-of-body tour of time, space, and the edges of the universe. Both are masterpieces of imagination and vision. Neither book contains much dialogue but both are filled with Stapledon's remarkable creations, and they should not be missed by anyone who considers himself a SF reader.

One of my pet peeves is the number of books now out on the market which are copying Von Doniken and his theories on flying saucers. However, imitation is the greatest form of flattery, so I guess that explains it.

EDUCATOR PROFILE



Mr. Waters

Mr. Vaughn Waters, Civics teacher here at R.C.H.S. has been chosen as the teacher for the Educator-Profile column in this issue.

Mr. Waters is a native of Clay City, South of Brazil, Indiana. He went to Indiana State in Terre Haute, Indiana and graduated in 1936.

Before coming to Rensselaer Mr. Waters taught at Sugaridge Township, and Harris Township, in Clay County. Also he taught at Union township, in Gibson County in Indiana.

Mr. Waters was a baseball and basketball coach at Sugaridge Township, and Harris Township in Clay County.

On asking the question why he decided to become a civics teacher, he responded by saying he didn't plan on becoming a teacher and that he didn't start out to be a teacher.

Mr. Waters selected Rensselaer because it seemed to be the best place available.

He also thought that history helps a person because you learn how things might be in the future and understand the way things have worked in the past. He stated too, that you should have a great feeling for the future.

Upon retiring Mr. Waters plans on spending time in Clay County. He does not plan on spending time in the same place. He also mentioned Florida, Southern California, Arizona and Texas as other possible places.

This is Mr. Waters thirty-seventh year of teaching. Out of those thirty-seven years, he has taught seventeen of those years, here at R.C.H.S.

Mr. Waters' hobby is traveling. He said that this helps him to talk with other persons and to understand their feelings in other parts of the country.

Where oh where is it leading us?
To a sick and dying earth.

Economy, Economy, what are you doing to me?
Your destroying all things with value
Now what will our economy be?

Yellow Lines

Most of the students should have noticed yellow lines in the bus loading zone. If you drive, or even if you don't you should know that you don't park where the yellow lines are.

The loading zone is to be kept clear of cars as much as possible. The object is, drive up, let your passengers off and go; don't park in the loading zone.

In the past especially at basketball games lots of cars have been in the loading area, and Mr. Roberts, Principal, and the fire department, have asked people to move their cars.

In an emergency the area would be used for fire trucks, ambulances, etc. If something happened to cause a panic during a basketball game, should the people start rushing out, there would be a bus or John Q. Public's car in the way, blocking the exit.

Hopefully through the cooperation of the Rensselaer community and the RCHS students, this area can be kept free of cars, trucks, and buses, in case of an emergency.

Youth Organizations Meet

Our District held its annual Youth Organization Meeting last Thursday.

The objective of the meeting was to bring different youth organizations together and share their ideas with each other.

V.I.C.A., D.E.C.A., O.E.A., H.O., & F.F.A. got together and held a joint meeting along with some individual sessisions. Representativess usually state officers, from each organization gave a short speech and familarized the rest with their purposes and through this participants realized that many good opportunities are available for the youth of America.

The meeting ended with refreshments.

ODDS 'N ENDS

By Don Matt

Sorry for passing along a bit of misinformation in the issue of the paper.

Contrary to what I said David Corridine, star of Kung Fu, is not dead. The report of his death was merely a rumor.

A late note: The week of October 8th through the 13th was National Unicorn Hunting Season. Experts on the subject say that unicorns are in season all year long, but they worked to have an official hunting season.

Cashing in on fame: Senator Sam Ervin, late of the Watergate hearings, will have an album out soon on Columbia Records. The album will include a collection of stories, old sayings, poetry and Bible quotations. Entitled Senator Sam At Home, it should be out before the end of the year.

For all you athletically minded students and for those of you who like the martial arts, karate, Kung Fu etc. read Professional Karate. Professional Karate is a new magazine which covers all phases of the martial arts including tournaments and their contestants, profile sketches plus top experts who give pointers on how to learn or improve your karate skills.

If you're loooking for something to do, head to the math office. There's almost always someone waiting to challenge an unsuspecting person to a game of chess or square-off.

Interesting facts: The air force has just equipped all their B-1 strategic bombers with anti-pollution and anti-noise devices to help protect the environment.

Also, it was learned that the country of Zaire, in Africa, is recruiting pygmies for their armies. This is the first time pygmies have been allowed to be in the army.

I would like to close with this question. If there is money to pay for the electricity to light school sporting events, why isn't there money to buy gas to get the team to the event?

Power Shortage Reaches Rensselaer

Rensselaer may really be in big trouble, maybe we won't have electricity in the near future.

Nearly all the street lights in town have been turned off to save on fuel. The public has been asked to help in the time of crisis.

Don't just turn off lights, turn off the big stuff. Don't have the color TV on all day and night; keep it off as much as you can. Air conditioners, electric stoves, electric dryers, fans, electric can openers, etc., use all electric appliances as little as possible.

Everyone must cut down at least 15 per cent.

In President Nixon's crisis speech, he suggested turning clocks back an hour so there is more daylight in the evening. It has also been suggested by another person that setting clocks back 2 hours would not be such a bad idea. I've heard what may be even better, "Don't mess with the time."

Remember the old saying, "Better to light a candle than to curse the darkness."

Popular Culture

By Joe Kenny

This "buh" junk has got to stop. When a few people do it, it's weird, but clever. When 87 per cent of the freshman and sophomore classes do it, it's moronic. The problem is that it's too simple. Anybody canbuh dobuh itbuh.

Books: Robert Klane (The Horse is Dead) is probably the funniest writer that ever lived. Read Where's Poppa? (another "tasteless novel," as he says). It's grosser and not as funny, but still enjoyable.

TV: Nothing except for the nightly movies, fresh off the silver screen, but emasculated.

Stock sports interview question: "Well, coach, what do you think about Podunk Tech, who you play tomorrow night?"

Stock reply: "Well, I think they're a strong team, a lot better than their 0-53-1 record indicates. I think we'll have a big problem with overconfidence, but we're really pointing for this game, blah, blah, etc. etc."

Reply I'd like to see (just once): "Podunk Tech? They are, undoubtedly, the worst team in the nation. They've got lousy coaching, no offense, and the leakiest defense I've ever seen. What puzzles me is how they ever managed to hold anyone to a tie. We'll massacre them."

Kyler Laird (age 4) was listening as his sister Reneel (drummer par excellence) practice with her "combo" at the Laird home. After listening awhile, he asked, "Mommy, why does Reneel keep playing her drums while those girls are trying to sing?"

Movies: Coming to the Palace are Romeo and Juliet (already a classic) and Scarecrow (with Gene Hackman, which I don't know much else about).

Walking Tall looks good; I guess it sort of follows in the footsteps of Billy Jack. There's also a sequel to Billly Jack (entitled The Trial of Billy Jack to be released soon.

"His stubble split into a grin. 'Golly, fella, we don't have such a thing as the time. You from outta state, ain't that so? They got the time so fouled up that I guess there doesn't nobody really know it."

"Now you take me. I'm a millworker an' I work switch shifts, sometimes weekends off, sometimes a day here, a night someplace else, so you'd think that'd be enough of a mess, wouldn't you? But then they got this time thing and I sometimes work one day standard, the next day daylight. Sometimes even come to work on daylight and go home on standard. Oh boy, time? I tell you, you name it. We got fast time, slow time, daylight time, night time, Pacific time, good time, bad time . . ."

(On the time situation in Oregon, from Ken Kesey's Sometimes A Great Notion).

William Shakespeare, Gen. William Booth, Leonardo Da Vinci, Charles Darwin, Upton Sinclair, H. G. Wells, Ven. George Montgomery, and George Bernard Shaw were all vegetarians.

The world's record for see-sawing (continuous motion) is 200 hours by Tom Adamo and Bob Rowell at Manassa, Virginia in August 1971.

Art Class

By Steve Scripter

Seventy seven students participate in the art class, which is sponsored by Mr. Roger Beehler, who has taught art for ten years.

The art room is open to anyone who is willing to work in their spare time even if they aren't in art. The projects which students may work on are: sculpture, paper mache, ceramics, drawing, painting, and craft-type projects.

Projects vary with the students' ability. The reason for the art class is to be able to work with the various media, and to have fun while doing their work. Students can work with any material for an art purpose. Imagination is their only limitation.

Mr. Beehler stated that the annual art show will be April 26, 27, 28. This art show is the greatest art show in this community, and people come by the hundreds to the art show.

Mr. Beehler also stated, "I guarantee there will be some nice things in the art show."

Wrestling

Mr. Burvan, the Rensselaer wrestling coach of RCHS, is looking forward to three goals this year.

Mr. Burvan is working on a winning record, winning the conference, and scoring the highest in the sectional.

Mr. Burvan stated that there are thirty students on the team and that is not a huge team.

The light and middle classes should be strong, depending on how fast some of the less experienced wrestlers come along. He will have to go with four or five freshman this year and this is what he means when he says he has a young team.

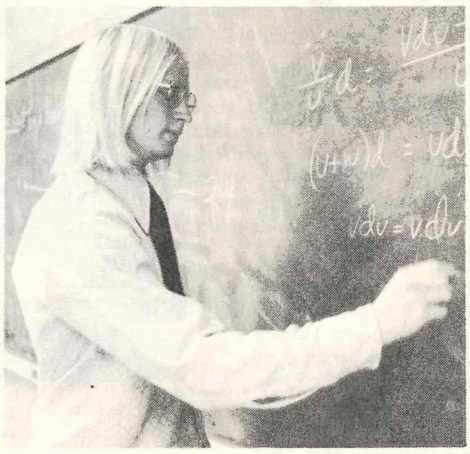
Student Teacher Review



Mr. Gerlach

Mr. James Gerlach is student teaching under Mr. Carter this first semester. A senior at St. Joe's Mr. Gerlach is studying secondary mathmatics and computer.

He thinks that the "Kids here are like kids everywhere from coast to coast." He also feels that Mr. Carter is an "excellent teacher with a realistic approach and a way of handling high school kids."

After he graduates this spring, he plans on going to the New England states to teach. Eventually he hopes to go to graduate school and teach at college.

Mr. Gerlach enjoys; sports, especially baseball, making things with his hands, and playing with computers.

Fort Recovery, Ohio is his hometown. He attended a private seminary school so he feels that teaching in a public school is "an enlightening experience."

New Freshman Course

Rensselaer Central High School is offering, social studies to the Freshman this year.

Nine weeks of it is mostly devoted to career exploration. The goals of the class are to help students know themselves, values, interests, abilities better, annd to relate this information to the working world.

This nine weeks, the Freshman will view filmstrips, films, hear speakers from the community, participate in the field trips, interview people in various jobs, and discuss the whole world of work.

Each Freshman will have a chance to view jobs that might be fulfilling to them.

Jazz Convo

St. Joseph's College Jazz Ensemble performed for the student body recently as part of the school's convocation program.

The opening song was the theme from "Brian's Song," a movie which was filmed on the campus of St. Joe. Also, during the convocation the group played "Ain't No Way," "Hidy Ho" sung by Gary Wall and "Movin' In".
